IMPORTANT...WHEN YOU GO TO WASHINGTON DC IN JAN. 6TH, GO IN FROM MARYLAND.

You have to cross a bridge from Virginia, but Maryland has hundreds of streets into D.C. If you want to avoid roadblocks, checkpoints, etc. Come in from Prince George's county, NOT Montgomery county. I'm native Washingtonian...

MD and VA Police are the same. The difference is "how can I avoid blockades and checkpoints to get into DC". Maryland has hundreds of ways. Virginia has 5 bridges going into DC, and that's it Nobody's showing up to the third American revolution just to sit it out in jail. God help the officers who try to arrest heavily armed MAGA supporters at checkpoints after the president requests their presence in the capital to preserve the republic amid a communist coupe d'état.

The libs in DC will hear the Trump supporters fight their way over the bridge. They'll go from being pompous little cunts in youtube's comment section and in their twitter replies to Trump, to full blown anxiety attack, ugly crying in the fetal position under their bed spam calling their daddies because they need them to come pick them up because they're scared and don't wanna play grown up anymore.

But the knock at the door won't be the daddy they want. A big boot will come through the door. Then a green hand will reach in and fumble around trying to find the knob. It'll grasp it. Turn it. The door will pop open and Pepe the frog will walk in shirtless with an AR-15 and a raging hard on. He'll drag the soyboy out from under their bed by one foot, him screaming and clawing at the floor, snot caked face, making weird types of rodent noises in his distress. And Pepe the frog will put 100 miles on a condom in 3 minutes, 7 glorious inches at a time.

Then the base pede arguing with the soyboy in the youtube comment section will get a reply notification. Roll his eyes. Not want to check it. Then check it to see the message, "Kek. Make em Reeceeeeeeeeeee pede!" and smile knowing that the soyboy he was arguing with got the daddy he needed.

yep, under their lamest directorate I might add, Remember when the previous administration had released all those tons of declassified docs and thought simply "highlighting" them and changing the highlight to black actually redacted the words? and when released all you had to do was highlight the doc in adobe with your mouse to see what was under the "redaction"? well they had to find an unlucky cheap workforce to manually redact and scan all the docs for a summer to resubmit them.

Their power points to lure us in were pretty dope though. nothing of substance once we got there.

ps: Fuck DC in the Summer.

That's why I wrote it. A permit won't protect you in DC, and you don't want to get stopped or delayed just to get in the city.

I've been on the bridges when the Mayor decided to shut down transit. She'll close every exit until you drive past downtown close to Maryland, and you won't be able to re-route anywhere near downtown.

Coming through residential areas is much better. They can't block that traffic...too many arteries and volume.

= MAGAconvert 15 points 2 hours ago +15 / -0

Yes there was and as I mentioned the cops are rarely checking.

Southern Maryland is super rich, especially the Bethesda/Chevy Chase area. The cops don't like to hassle people in that area. If you do happen to get stopped by a cop and somehow piss him off enough to get searched and are found carrying a firearm you're screwed, but you've got to be doing something pretty stupid to have that happen.

parent permalink save report block reply.

= minoritytrump [S] 9 points 2 hours ago +9 / -0

Slight correction....Bethesda/Chevy Chase are in Montgomery county...VERY AGGRESSIVE AND LIBERAL. There is too little crimew in those areas to otherwise occupy the police, so they will be free to block you and check your car, and delay you for a LONG TIME.

Much more crime in PG county, so less police to do checkpoints. Much easier to get in. As for parking...park at the Casino and Uber in. Much safer, faster, and all experienced Uber drivers know how to avoid police checkpoints :-)

parent permalink save report block reply.

= MAGAconvert 2 points 2 hours ago +2 / -0

Yes but I think the cops in PG county are told to look for people because of this. The cops there are very aggressive. They will pull you over and ticket for anything.

You seem to think they're going to try to set up roadblocks and check every person going to DC. This would be impossible given the daily commute, even with COVID cutting that number way down. If you think the cops are going to be doing normal cop stuff during the day then you're good to go.

I've seen it before...many times...so let me tell you exactly what they are going to do. Remember I said this:

1. Any Metro riders will be forced to exit at Union Station and walk into downtown area. Did this with Obama's election
2. Block off all roads south of K St, with checkpoints at 17th st, 3rd St near courthouses, and Pennsylvania ave coming from Georgetown
3. Block all exits coming in from 95 south until 6th St SE
4. Shut down bridge coming from Arlington into DC

That's all they need, really

Well Bethesda and Chevy Chase are both in Montgomery County so they can just be called MoCo as that's the homogenous area of cucks. I guess you could call it central MD if you really wanted to? But really there are only a few geographic "regions" of MD -- Southern Maryland, The Eastern Shore, and The Panhandle. Though typically if you're from out of state or whatever and you ask someone from Chevy Chase where they're from they'll say DC or the DC area

I live in this area and I can confirm, MD cops are absolute assholes if they know or think you own firearms. If you have a Concealed Carry permit from your state, they will see that before they walk to your window and try everything to catch you not properly transporting by MD law. Hell, they will step all over your rights to get into your vehicle if you have stickers or decals that would even elude to the idea you may have a firearm in there. I'm not going to go into detail of the req's for sake of leaving out important info, so do your research if you EVER plan on driving through MD with a firearm in the car. (Basically, the firearm can be inside the vehicle but unloaded without the magazine, and the magazine must be locked in the trunk).

You can argue your rights all day and night, but if they want to get into your car, THEY WILL call a K9 unit and the K9 WILL alert no matter what and give them their so called right to search your vehicle. I won't even get started on the gross violations of our Constitutional Rights when it comes to K9 searches.

In VA the worst dept to watch out for is Fairfax County Police. That's another dept that will shit all over your rights, and they love fucking with out of state drivers. They basically try to search every vehicle they pull over. I'd be surprised if there was a single officer worth a damn in that dept.

Both posters are correct. Montgomery county is a cesspool with cameras everywhere. yES they record your plates. YES they are unavoidable.

If you go, they have your license plate. No getting around that, but thats only an issue if we lose.

Maryland is extremely unfriendly to gun owners. Personally I'd take my chances with VA and the bridges.

She will block all the exits from the highway into downtown DC until you are almost in Maryland. Then, you'll be stuck in traffic for hours because everyone is funneled into a 2 lane highway that ends at Nationals stadium at a traffic light, where it will be easy to have a police checkpoint. This advice is for avoiding the resistance police, which Mayor Bowser will surely deploy to stop MAGA people from coming into the city. PG county is where the black people live, and where most of the neighborhood roads are that lead into DC...so MUCH LESS LIKELY TO ENCOUNTER BLOCKADES :-)

So this smal seem like a really dumb question - I booked my hotel in downtown DC, it has parking (which is expensive at the hotel but I bought a hotel package that will include the parking), and I'm driving down. Do you think it will be difficult to drive into the city of DC - is it better to take the metro to the hotel? I'm not at all familiar with DC.

If you can drive in through Maryland, I'd do it. If you take the metro, they will block exits to all downtown stations and force you to exit at Union Station. If your hotel is near Union Station...then you'd be better off taking the MARC train. The City has little/no control over MARC, but they do Metro.

thank you! I will plan to drive in through Maryland and park directly in the hotel. The hotel is right next to the White House at the corner of the national mall so they may block metro exits in that area.

I'd be shocked if they let you drive that far in. During Obama's inauguration, they blocked off from K st in across all streets except a few, and you could only walk in from there. You might want to call the hotel to see if they have off-site parking and can bring you in. All downtown hotels have contingencies for protests in DC. At least 50 a year...it's normal life for us.

If you have parking at the hotel, drive in and park. That's a good option. It will likely be underground and safe.

I think its unlikely you'll want to drive in to DC period. If the turnout is large, there will be no place to park. If you're driving get there a couple days early. If not, I'd recommend parking at a metro or bus station outside DC in MD or VA and riding into the city.

You can park at the ZOO. You can also park in Silver Spring and take an Uber for $20. ROCK CREEK PARKWAY is a good backdoor if you drive in and encounter traffic Terrible, but that doesn't matter. Executive actions can be "extra-legal" in extreme circumstances, and I would NEVER trust Mayor Bowser. if you're already downtown on foot with a bunch of other carry-ers, you're safer. But, on the road in your car, you're a sitting duck if Police ordered to take your gun or arrest you because DC isn't recognizing your license.

This is wrong.. just all wrong. There are a shit ton more police coming from the north and thru Virginia. You can't drive 3 mins in Northern VA without running into some type of law enforcement agency.

I'm not talking about VA police. I'm talking about getting into DC without going through a Blockade or checkpoint. Police in Va or MD are the same, but PG county police are too busy, and there are too many roads, for any blockade or checkpoint to be effective

parent permalink save report block reply

= BobAW23 2 points 1 hour ago +2 / -0

Still wrong. . There is NO getting into DC without crossing the path of Police. From the north of Maryland at the PA border, A L L the way to Richmond VA, is flooded with law enforcement. There are 6 or 7 agencies within spitting distance of PG County alone. If you think rolling thru the hood, mid day, on the way to a Trump rally is safe and effective, then there is no hope.

= minoritytrump [S] 1 point 1 hour ago +1 / -0

Of course, you can get into DC without being stopped by police...do they look especially busy to you?

And, of course it's safer to drive through the "hood" in the middle of the day than any other time, when people work and it's easy to see trouble and avoid it. What are you talking about?

"when people work" . . Ok . i forgot thats why the hood and neighboring streets in DC are doing so well, everyone is busy working hard and not just chilling on the Gov't dime all day. You sir, clearly have no idea what you're talking about. If you wanna risk driving around the DC area, with out of state plates, during a massive gathering the police have been well aware of for weeks, go for it champ! And good luck. But this bullshit on the site lately, where people keep trying to direct and tell where one should or shouldn't go, is getting old. If you wanna organize, send some emails and keep your plans tight. Stop telegraphing all your shit for the world to see, this is bush league level shit going on and it's sad.

Dude...you don't think poor people work? Maybe where you're from, but DC is recession-proof. Most people who live in PG county (which is the richest black county in America, btw) are working poor or retired. DC ain't cheap, even in poor areas. A terrible, roach infested 2 Bdrm apt. is over $1000/mo.

I can't speak to your personal issues, but might I suggest chilling the fuck out? By your logic, you would attack anyone on this site who is trying to offer helpful info, on the off chance you might stop someone who has bad intentions?

Who made you the .win police?

When people make statements like "the richest black county in America", in my opinion, they tend to be caught up in the very type of thinking we see from the left. You're caught up in explaining demographics and then lead straight into a personal attack, instead of addressing any of the points made in my reply.. I mean this is par for the course as far as weak lefty tactics go. I'll say it again, your info is wrong and not helpful.

You can walk over the Key Bridge. So if you do decide to go from VA, park somewhere in VA and take the metro to Rosslyn and you can walk over the Key Bridge, there are usually many people jogging and walking on there. Then you'd have to grab an Uber or taxi tho because you'll be in Georgetown and there's no metro. Or just take the metro all the way into DC.

I drove south down I-95 and through Baltimore and DC just once and I got lucky, it was mid to late afternoon, and all the traffic was northbound. From the Baltimore beltway at the Navy yard all the way back to I-95 was backed up, I could see the Beltway north on the inland side was backed up, I-95 north was visibly congested and slow all the way to DC, and I went the inland side of the DC beltway in bumper to bumper traffic at like 30 MPH the entire way across and down. Just a normal weekday.

My normal route to avoid all that is US-15 to US 17 from Harrisburg to Fredericksburg. I tend to think for this event I would consider doing the same and drive into DC maybe from Frederick to avoid the need to cross any bridges. Use your street view images and local traffic cameras to try to get a feel for what normal traffic is like, what neighborhoods you may wish to avoid, etc.

You could even I suppose take the train in from Point of Rocks.

I think the police and roadblocks are going to primarily focus on north and south coming in on the highways, so if you can get onto a decent local road you may see fewer of them.

I mean I made it through all that with my van that was overdue for inspection in my state and never pulled over, so there's that.

From the south maybe you could cross the river on US-301.
